

Neil Majors
President, Education Practice

Neil leads his team in providing consulting and administrative services to institutions of higher education; clients are colleges and universities nationwide, varying in size from small private schools to large public institutions.

Neil began his career in the insurance industry when joining Renaissance Agencies in 2001. He first served as part of the I.T. department, helping to maintain data integrity and streamlining back-office processes, then moved to the Compliance department and worked to develop plan brochures, coordinating the issuance of compliant policies, and tracking legislative initiatives and compliance issues.

Following several promotions, Neil began overseeing client service and business operations, and Renaissance was acquired by Ascension Insurance, Inc. in 2009. In 2012 Ascension created its Education Practice to focus on providing services to institutions of higher education, and named Neil the Chief Operating Officer to lead the practice group.

When he's not working, Neil is fiercely protective of his time and happily enjoys his life outside of the office.
